

Oliver Ranch is a unique 100-acre preserve dedicated to site-specific art. In 1985, Steven and Nancy Oliver commissioned their first piece. Since then, the Olivers have commissioned 19 works that rise up over the rolling hills of the ranch's landscape.

Learn about the artists who have transformed the ranch into a unique site-specific art installation harmonious with the surrounding environment.

The Oliver Ranch is not open to the public; tours are strictly for the benefit of nonprofit groups such as the Geyserville Community Foundation and the Geyserville Chamber of Commerce.
